Registration is Now Open for Carestream Dental's New Global Oral Health Summit

Practitioners of All Specialties Are Invited to Attend

ATLANTA—What oral health care professionals learn in Vegas doesn't have to stay in Vegas—in fact, they're highly encouraged to take the insight they gain at the Global Oral Health Summit back to their practices. The Summit, hosted by Carestream Dental, is 2016's new comprehensive educational event that brings dental, orthodontic and OMS professionals together under one roof, Nov. 10-13, 2016, at Caesar's Palace, Las Vegas.

The Global Oral Health Summit takes the place of Carestream Dental's three separate Users' Meetings of the past and is open to all oral health care professionals, both doctors and staff. The mix of specialties—both Carestream Dental software and equipment users and non-users—only sweetens the pot.

"The new format and new location of the Global Oral Health Summit gives Carestream Dental the opportunity to go all in," Mary Conditt, director of industry relations, Carestream Dental, said. "There will be enhanced training sessions, tremendous networking opportunities and some of the most influential industry speakers from all different specialties."

The Summit opens with keynote speaker Laura Schwartz, former White House director of events. Schwartz created events that represented a nation and inspired the world. Today, as a professional speaker, international television commentator and author of "Eat, Drink and Succeed," Schwartz shares the networking secrets that skyrocketed her onto the world stage along with personal anecdotes from her life and White House years.

Following the opening session, attendees can rake in the CE credits while attending educational sessions hosted by some of the oral health care industry's most respected names. Speakers include Dr. Craig Misch of the Misch International Implant Institute; Dr. Tom Pitts of Ortho Classic; Dr. John Khademi; Dr. Ben Burris; Dr. Kanyon Keeney; Dr. David Little; and Dr. Mark Setter, to name just a few of the 20 scheduled clinical key opinion leaders.

As at past Users' Meetings, the valuable training sessions that longtime users of Carestream Dental software have come to rely on still play a vital role at the Global Oral Health Summit. Different tracks are available to CS SoftDent, CS PracticeWorks, CS WinOMS and CS OrthoTrac users so that attendees can participate in the classes most relevant to them. Plus, new this year, "super users" of the software step into the role of trainer and share the tips and tricks they've picked up over the years that make their practices run so smoothly.

The Summit will also host many different technology exhibitors, giving attendees the opportunity to break from educational sessions and explore the latest practice management solutions.

With the mix of specialists and their staff, plus the added excitement of the Vegas atmosphere, there's a full house of networking and social events. From the welcome party to the cocktail hour to the doctor's reception, attendees have plenty of opportunities for fun-filled evenings with new colleagues.
