Carestream Dental to Deliver a Teledentistry Solution

ATLANTA—With the current health crisis making it difficult for doctors to see patients in-office, practices are looking for alternative ways to provide care. Fortunately, Carestream Dental will be partnering to launch a teledentistry solution to help provide remote care.

Having the ability to connect remotely with patients is an ideal way to communicate without close physical contact. Teledentistry provides an easy way for patients to connect and receive immediate help and professional advice.

“Carestream Dental is excited to be launching a teledentistry solution,” Ed Shellard, D.M.D. chief dental officer, Carestream Dental, said. “The COVID-19 virus highlights the need to offer a remote solution to interact with patients and this will help deliver a timely answer.”
